Richard Friedberg, ARA President

Our 1988 Convention is drawing near and this is your last chance to partake in the delights we have to offer. Let me know immediately if you would like to have a reservation made for you at our informal ARA dinner on Saturday May 28th. Do not delay!

I have the following information on housing for those attending NOJEX from out of the area. The official show hotel is the Meadowlands Hilton where the show will be held. A single is $76 and a double is $79 (you might want to share a room with an ARA friend).

A few hundred yards from the Hilton, however, is a Red Roof Inn (telephone 201-319-1000) and their rates are $49.95/59.95 depending on the number of people and type of room. Also in the area, within a mile of the Hilton, is the Plaza Motor Inn (210-348-3800); the Plaza charges $47/52 for one/two people.

I have reservation cards for the Hilton, and can send one to you. If you would like to choose one of the alternate motels, simply call directly to them to make your reservation.

Member Ron Lesher has done an outstanding job of putting together a varied series of programs. The schedule of events for the show is as follows:

Saturday, May 28, 1988

2:00PM U.S. Oleomargarine Tax Stamps, Carter Litch-field

3:00PM State Revenue Stamps, Terry Hines

4:00PM Revenue Stamps of South and Central America, Bill Welch, Kimber Wald and Roy Ferber.

5:00PM American Revenue Association Annual Meeting 7:00PM American Revenue Association Dutch Treat Dinner

Sunday, May 29, 1988

1:00PM U.S. Internal Revenue Tax Paid Stamps on Tin Foil and Paper Tobacco Wrappers, J. Alan Hicks 2:00PM U.S. Wine Stamps, Ronald E. Lesher

3:00PM Taxed Photographs, 1864-65, Bruce Baryla

We will have an ARA general meeting Saturday afternoon, and all members are urged to attend. I look forward to seeing a lot of our members there. If you have never attended an ARA Convention, I think you will be in for a treat. Lots of people there know what you collect, and you'll receive few of the puzzled looks you get from people when you ask to see some revenues (the usual stamp show response).

After such a plesant discussion of our convention, it is my sad duty to inform the membership of the death of our Foreign Sales Manager, James Giegerich, on April 25 following a short illness. Jim was born in Madison, WI in 1946 and lived in nearby Cottage Grove following time spent in the Army as a Medical Corpsman. He was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh and employed as a Section Manager at Hazelton Laboratories in Madison.

Former Sales Manager Don Duston is assisting in turning over materials to the new manager who is now awaiting Board of Directors approval. More information will be announced as soon as possible.

1898 Bank Checks with Stamp Added by the Bank and Canceled with Three-line Explanatory Handstamp

by Michael Mahler, ARA

The check illustrated here was executed August 25, 1898, about two months after the documentary taxes of the Spanish-American War era took effect on July 1. It reached the State Savings Bank of Butte, Montana, without being stamped, for the 2¢ "I.R." overprint affixed is tied by a three-line magenta handstamp reading "Revenue Stamp affixed by Bank, added to the check and charged 2 cents." Confirming this, the amount of the check has been changed from $20 to $20.02. A "Paid" handstamp in the same magenta ink is dated August 27.

Several aspects of this unusual and enjoyable item call for comment. First, by the letter of the law (specifically, Sections 7 and 13 of the Act of June 13, 1898), the makers of the check, E.O. Dugan & Co., were liable to a fine of up to $100 for failure to stamp their check, with the check itself to be invalid. No provision was made by law for the check to be stamped by the bank. On this point one might comment that the Act of June 13, 1898, was hastily drawn up, and notable for its inconsistencies, omissions and irrelevancies. On the other hand, even the most thorough and detailed of the documentary tax acts, that of June 30, 1864, was not precise on the questions at hand. Perhaps it was felt that some difficult points were best left open to interpretation, for even by that time there did exist a body of official opinion indicating that a usage such as the one illustrated here would have been legal, and more was later added to this body of opinion. Consider the following rulings:

"The party of the second part may also affix as well as cancel the required revenue stamp or stamps to an instrument subject to stamp duty, if the party of the first part fails to do so, providing he, she, or they do so before the instrument is used;..." (Joseph J. Lewis, Commissioner, in a letter of July 11, 1863, reprinted as Correspondence No. 43 in Boutwell, 1863).

"Any instrument requiring a stamp may be stamped by either party to the same before its execution, the party affixing the stamp cancelling the same." (Ruling No. 219 in Boutwell, 1865).

"Instruments, to be valid, must be stamped before they are used. But if a party sends a note or other paper to a bank, with a request that it shall be stamped, the party affixing it acts as the agent of the person, and must cancel it by using his initials." (Ruling No. 250 in Boutwell, 1865).

None of these fits the present case exactly; for example, they do not address the question of when a check can be said to be "used." However, their tenor suggests that the usage under consideration probably would have been considered acceptable during the period of Civil War taxes. Since the documentary tax legislation of the Spanish-American War period largely mimicked that of this earlier period, it seems reasonable to hypothesize that a favorable opinion would also have been rendered on the 1898 check shown here. In fact, such a ruling may well be found in the regularly published Treasury Department Decisions of 1898 and thereafter. I have only a nodding acquaintance with these, but perhaps this question will spur further research by specialists in this period.

A second point I feel compelled to raise is that the use of the explanatory handstamp to cancel the stamp was not strictly legal. Section 9 of the Act of June 13, 1898, states that, "...the person using or affixing [an adhesive stamp] shall write or stamp thereupon the initials of his name and the date upon which the same shall be attached or used, so that the same may not again be used." However, we may presume that the last clause here is the operative one. The explanatory cancel used by the State Savings Bank of Butte certainly prevented the stamp from being used again, and it seems unthinkable that a prosecution would be based on the fact that it omitted the appropriate name and date.

Finally, the present find included three other relevant pieces. One is an essentially identical check made by E.O. Dugan & Co. on November 23, 1898, and stamped by the bank with a  $2\phi$  Battleship documentary tied by the same handstamp. The other two checks, also drawn by E.O. Dugan & Co. on the same bank, provide an interesting final twist to this tale, for they are dated July 18 and July 29, 1898, and both stamped with  $2\phi$  "I.R." overprints tied by "E.O.D. & Co." datestamps (albeit with dates inverted). This suggests that the supply of revenue stamps to Butte might have been initially adequate, but insufficient shortly thereafter.

State Narcotic Stamp Update

Additional information about state narcotic stamps has been received from Robert Bergstrom, Donald Duston and Kenneth Pruess. The article which appeared in a recent issue (1988 January; 42:37) needs a point of clarification. The Illinois $2,000 stamp is for use on drugs not sold by weight but by the dose such as pills. The tax rate is $2,000 per 50 dosage units.

Bergstrom sent a copy of Illinois Department of Revenue form CCS-1, "Cannabis and Controlled Substances Stamp Order Invoice/Return." The stamps are available by mail or in person from the Illinois Department of Revenue at Excise Taxes Section, P.O. Box 19018, Springfield, IL 62794-9018 (phone 217-785-6613) or 100 West Randolph Street C-300, Chicago, IL 60601-3274 (phone 312-917-2621). Stamps will be mailed first class to the address given by the purchaser at the purchaser's risk. Payment must be by cash, certified check or money order payable to the Illinois Department of Revenue. Personal checks will not be accepted.

It is reported that Illinois also now has the $5.00 cannabis stamp available in a new decal format. There are also rumors of similar stamps from Nevada and Kansas but nothing confirmed. Does anyone have any additional information.

The tax in Arizona became effective in 1983. The tax rate is $10 per ounce on cannabis and $125 per ounce on other controlled substances. They have issued six stamps, three values each for cannabis and controlled substances. They are for cannabis, 1 gram red (35¢), 1 ounce blue ($10) and 1 Kg pink ($352.74), and for controlled substances a 1 gram purple

($4.40), 1 ounce green ($125) and 1 Kg brown ($2,000).

Apparently the state of Minnesota felt that they would not sell any stamps and therefore only prepared labels devoid of denominations. Virtually all of their sales have been to revenue stamp collectors.

An article by Bruce Ellison appearing in the April 11, 1988, issue of Linn's Stamp News (61 (3101):9) indicates that the state of Maine also instituted a stamp tax on illegal drugs. Their rates were $3.50 per gram of marijuana and $200 per gram of cocaine. By the end of March only one stamp had been sold, to a stamp collector for $150 which was the minimum amount that could be purchased.

The Maine stamps are self-adhesive about 1.5 inches square, printed in greed and numbered in black. The unknown collector purchased stamp number 001. The state still has stamps 002 to 1000 but they may never be sold. While the buyer was to remain unknown the buyer could be secretly photographed and followed by law enforcement officials. The Maine attorney general ruled that that would be self-incrimination and therefore unconstitutional. The Maine legislature is reported to be in the process of amending the tax law but that a new plan is to keep the tax but eliminate the need for stamps.

South Dakota is the only other state known to definitely have issued narcotic stamps but so far they are not known in collectors hands. They have a $50 stamp for marijuana and a $5,000 for other substances. In addition the stamps are sold only to dealers who much purchase a $1,000 license.

Plate Entry Markings on U.S. Proprietary Adhesive Medicine Stamps

Part II: Exploration for New Plates

by Brian Clague, ARA and Richard Riley, ARA Introduction

In an introductory paper (Clague and Riley, 1986) we discussed the characteristics of position dots (P.D.) and side point dots (S.P.D.) and their method of use by siderographers employed by the companies which engraved both the regular U.S. postal issues and the U.S. Proprietary Medicine Stamps. It was concluded that the variation in methods used by the firms of Butler & Carpenter and Joseph Carpenter vis-a-vis the bank note companies and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing could be used to partially distinguish the parentage of plates from these firms. Furthermore, critical to this study would be the extension of this technique in obtaining evidence for the preparation of new plates from the old dies. It was further suggested that data on the number of stamps printed and the appearance of double transfers late in the life of these issues might also argue for new plates, and that taken together, this and ancillary evidence could be presented regarding the assertion of Holcombe regarding new plates used in production of the private die stamps. In making such a study it was anticipated that previously unrecognized varieties might be recognized since preparation of new plates affords an opportunity for alteration of dies. In this we have not been disappointed.

The first person to compare the location of position dots (P.D.) in the description of different plates of a private die stamp was William T. Kiepura who reported his findings in a study of the John Henry one cent stamp, Scott number RS114 (Kiepura, 1939). Unfortunately this initial study was never extended beyond a brave beginning. We will discuss Kiepura's analysis later within the context of the analysis described below.

Analysis

At the outset it seems desirable to set down in graphic chart form a pattern showing production history of all of the face-different private die medicine issues and, secondly, a table listing items for which Holcombe claimed new plates had been prepared, together with information on the number of sheets printed and the existence of recognized double transfers. This information is given in Chart 1 (pages 66 and 67) and in Table 1 (page 68) respectively.

Chart 1 lists at the top the sequence of firms which printed these stamps together with the years each was involved. Below the dates are shaded boxes within which is indicated the type of printing paper in use for the designated period. The body of the chart gives the Scott RS numbers placed horizontally in the temporal order they first appeared. The numbers are classified vertically into four groups. The first, "Continuous Serial Production" are for those stamps issued rather continuously when needed from the date of their first appearance to the end of the tax period, i.e. 1883. The second group "Interrupted Production," are those for which copies on pink paper are unrecognized. The third group, "Isolated Production," are stamps with shorter life spans. The final group, "Altered Dies," are stamps from dies which had been altered to indicate a corporate name change or new ownership. The heavy continuation lines extending to the right of each group indicates the papers on which the foregoing stamps can be found and is meant thereby to indicate the time periods of use of the plates. The data are abstracted from data in the Boston Revenue Book (Toppan, Deats and Holland, 1899).

RS numbers are given in Table 1 for stamps for which Holcombe claimed new plates had been made (Holcombe, 1979), the number of sheets which were printed as calculated from data in the Boston Revenue Book, and papers on which double transfers have been noted as abstracted from Scott's Specialized Catalogue of United States Stamps (Scott Publishing Co., 1987) and from Riley and DeKay (Riley and DeKay, 1979-82).

To facilitate comparison of data in Table 1 with the data in Chart 1, the RS numbers in Table 1 are rendered in bold face type in the Chart. The stamps listed in the upper left quadrant of the Chart are those printed from plates made early in the series and used more or less continuously. It is in this group that the largest number of sheets were printed, the highest frequency of double transfers occur late in the production of the stamp, and the majority of new plates claimed by Holcombe are found. Indeed all but three of the items for which Holcombe said new plates had been prepared were for dies originally prepared by Butler & Carpenter or Joseph Carpenter. None were recorded in the "Isolated Production" group and only four in the "Altered Die" group. The data are consistent with our expectations.

Kiepura reported that two plates of the one cent John Henry stamp, RS114, could be distinguished based on the following criteria which he illustrated: the first plate engraved by Joseph Carpenter bore no plate number, stamps printed from it on old, silk, pink and some on watermarked paper have a P.D. in the upper right corner (Type Ia1, see Figure 1), and a second plate which he credited to the Bureau which bore a S.P.D. to the left of the vertical center of the frameline (Type II, see Figure 2) from which the balance of the watermarked paper copies were printed.

Matters seemed a bit clearer in 1942 when Holcombe discussed the plates for this issue. He stated that the first die and plate were engraved by Joseph Carpenter in 1869, stating: "the National placed their imprint and their 'No. 84' on the Carpenter plate," and "When the Bureau assumed the printing of postage stamps in October, 1881, workmen scratched the National imprint and added their own. The Bureau ordered a new plate on January 3, 1881, which bore their "No. 245" (Holcombe, 1979, p. 216). The factual origin of these statements was not revealed. Apparently Holcombe felt that only two plates were engraved. Looking at the total number of 57,000 sheets printed on all four papers [7,000, old (o.), 30,000, silk (s.), and 20,000, pink and watermarked (p. & w.)], one could estimate that at least two plates might be necessary for the printing volume. There have been no double transfers or die alterations recorded to date for this issue.

ferent Private Die Medicine Stamps

Our study of the one cent Henry stamp begins with the recognition of the Type Ia1 P.D. to be found on all stamps printed on old paper, silk paper, pink paper and approximately half of the copies on watermarked paper. Signs of plate wear are easily appreciated by comparison of copies from these papers. The most identifiable change is a thinning out of the beard and a widening of the space between the beard and the label (Figure 3). One understands this process by recalling the profile of a plate with its engraved lines of varying depth, lines which become less deep and move further apart as the printing surface wears down (Figure 4). As the plate wears, then, the thinnest lines or dots may be lost, distances between lines widen and the lines thin. Vignettes with sharp fine detail lines are at particular risk to disappear raising the consideration for plate replacement.

The first plate, now seen to have suffered plate wear as judged by the ragged appearance of the watermarked copies from plate number 1, was replaced by a plate which was engraved using a variation in the Type II S.P.D. technique. Since this technique was not used by the Joseph Carpenter firm, we conclude that the second plate was engraved by the bank note companies or the Bureau. We favor the Bureau as the maker based on the large number of watermarked copies which were printed from plate number 1, a task which occupied the efforts of the National and probably the American Bank Note Companies as well. A selvage imprint would be necessary for a final decision.

This S.P.D. described for plate number 2 is actually a variant of the Type II method. The only other time it has been seen is on a very late plate for the Brandreth stamp, RS35, from which watermarked copies were printed. We have never seen it on a first plate by any of the firms (Clague and Riley, 1986). Kiepura was correct, then, in describing the second plate.

However, his statement that this variant S.P.D. was first introduced by the Bureau was not correct and probably created great difficulties for him in his proposed further studies on these issues.

In conclusion, our predecessors were correct in postulating several plates. The use of the P.D. helps to identify the stamps from the second plate and from their relative number suggests that the author may have been either the American Bank Note Company or the Bureau. We summarize our conclusions in Figure 1 (a and b). RS114 (left) old paper, Plate #1, Type Ia1 (arrow). (Right) Some copies have in addition to the Ia1 dot guide lines along all side with a guide dot similar in location to Type II, but existing on both vertical sides.

Several caveats need mentioning. When we speak of looking for changes in the position dots as evidence for new plates, we are always hoping for the strongest contrast in technique as when a stamp from plate number 1 with a Type Ia1 P.D. is followed by a stamp from plate number 2 with Type II S.P.D. Difficulty arises when the second plate has an unclear S.P.D. which must be compared to a B&C plate on which 10% of the stamps, all from column 1, also have no P.D. The problem is in deciding when these unclear stamps represent a second plate. It is a statistical problem of sampling. In our experience, when the sample includes more than 50% stamps with unclear S.P.D., we feel that a plate change has occurred Fortunately that decision is often aided by the discovery of other information, such as the appearance of a double transfer, not hitherto described on plate number 1.

A second caveat concerns double transfers. They are the product of platemaking (first entry d.t.) or plate modification, as in re-entry (re-entry d.t.). Quite frankly, we cannot distinguish, at this time, one from the other. We tend to think that they are all first entry d.t. In some cases there will be other evidence to unequivocally support a new plate. Our reasons are also based on an analysis of the frequency of d.t. found in the work of Butler & Carpenter (work in progress).

We have drawn our information on the number of sheets printed from the Boston Revenue Book, and have rounded off the numbers to the nearest hundred. We have not systematically looked at variations in color, perforations, silk paper, guide lines or other markings in our analysis, although these might be helpful.

This concludes our discussion of the analysis technique We would now like to discuss the individual stamps which Holcombe considered were produced from two or more plates. In doing so reference to Chart 1 by the reader may be helpful. It should be pointed out that Holcombe claimed 45 extra plates for some 35 medicine companies, while also postulating several more. In our analysis we could confirm 45, while adding 15 more and challeng the authorship of several in the group.

We will continue with the list claimed by Holcombe and verified by us and will next consider the two cent John Bull, RS42. Butler & Carpenter engraved the first die for the first plate of RS42 in 1866. A total of 60,000 sheets were printed over the next sixteen years (30,000 old, 10,000 silk and 20,000 pink and watermarked). Two plates could be expected from this number of sheets. Holcombe states, "There is evidence that the Bureau made a new plate for the stamp, probably late in 1882." (Holcombe, 1979, p.68) In examining the stamps from the issue we found that all stamps on old, silk and pink papers had a Type Ia1 P.D. (Figure 5) and by contrast, no stamps on watermarked paper revealed any P.D. (Figure 6).

This would seem to be proof positive of a new plate, as surely plate wear would not eliminate the P.D. on all watermarked copies. The sharpness of detail in the vignette would also support a new plate. If we accept the evidence for a new plate, can we conclude that the Bureau was the likely author? We would think not. For the Bureau to be the author would have required there to have been no call for printings on watermarked paper for the period 1876-1879, which seems unlikely. It would seem more likely that the National authored this second plate. Here is a case where imprints would be necessary to be definitive on this point.

The story of the several dies used for RS74, Henry Dalley's Pain Extractor, is well known to all collectors of the field and is recorded in the Boston Revenue Book (Toppan, Deats and Holland, 1899, pp. 241-33). It begins with the error made in the engraving of the first die by Butler & Carpenter, in which the inscription "$1.00" was engraved to read "$100." The die was approved March 18, 1865, and was used to make the first plate, the stamps from which on old paper have a Type Ia2 P.D. (Figure 7). Upon detection of the error a new plate was engraved using the corrected relief in August 1865 by Butler & Carpenter. Stamps from plate number 2 also bear a Type Ia2 P.D. as expected (Figure 8). Only 400 sheets were printed from the first plate, while subsequent printing from the second and later plate total 50,000 sheets (20,000 old, 10,000 silk, 20,000 pink and watermarked).

Holcombe states that late in 1879 or 1880 the American Bank Note Company made a new plate to replace plate number 2, but in so doing used the erroneous die. (Holcombe, 1979, pp. 126-7) Stamps from this last plate have Type II S.P.D., read "$100" and were printed only on watermarked paper (Figure 9).

1866. A total of only 4,000 sheets would be printed (2500 old, 1000 silk and 500 pink and watermarked). From these numbers one would not anticipate the need for a second plate, however, Holcombe states that the Bureau made a new plate. (Holcombe, 1979, p. 129) We found on all stamps printed on old and silk paper and on a majority of those printed on watermarked paper a Type Ia2 P.D. (Figure 10). These stamps would all be from plate number 1.

Regarding a second plate, we are of the opinion that a second plate does not exist. We were for some time of the opinion that the very light, bright appearing copies on watermarked paper, many of which did not have a P.D. were evidence of the second plate. The discovery that one of these specimens had a scratch in the vignette which was also found on a silk copy from plate number 1 changed that conclusion (Figure 11). The brightness factor may have to be explained on the basis of inking and paper differences, rather than a newly engraved plate. At the moment the issue is unresolved.

The small brick red stamp, RS118, featuring an alchemist at work in front of a furnace was engraved for the Herrick Manufacturing Company, by Butler & Carpenter in 1862. Plasters were evidently a successful remedy as they required a total of 59,000 sheets (40,000) old, 9,000 silk and 10,000 pink and watermarked) between 1862 and 1881. From these numbers one would predict a second plate for old paper. Its presence would not be detected from P.D. analysis. There are no double transfers for this stamp yet recorded. Holcombe states, "the die and first plate were, of course, made by Butler and Carpenter, and the last plate was made by the Bureau in 1881." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 222) From our study, we easily find that all stamps on all papers examined, with a single exception, had a Type Ia1 P.D. in one or both corners (Figure 12). The single exception was a copy on watermarked paper with no P.D. (Figure 13). Its sharp detail does not suggest that the P.D. was lost by plate wear. This stamp could, however, represent one of the nine found in the first column of plate number 1 which was not expected to have a P.D., or it could represent a second plate.

The Herrick Family Medicine boxes were graced with a distinctive large black stamp, RS117, bearing a picture of the firm's founder. The die was engraved by Joseph Carpenter and the first plate completed in 1871. A total of 109,000 sheets were printed (9,000 old, 70,000 silk and 30,000 pink and watermarked). Such a large printing in black ink would suggest the need for two or even three plates, and Holcombe proposed, "another plate was made by the National Bank Note Company." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 223)

We found that all copies on old paper and about half of the copies on silk paper had a Type Ia1 P.D. (Figure 14). A second silk paper variety bore a clear Type Ib P.D. (Figure 15). The appearance of a distinctive P.D., characteristic of the Joseph Carpenter Co. must indicate their plate. It was noted that an occasional copy in silk does exist with unclear S.P.D. and a double transfer: plate #2, the last column! Several double transfers have been discribed for silk, pink and watermarked papers, (Riley and DeKay, 1982). All copies on pink and watermarked papers have a Type Ib P.D. indicating continued use of this plate number 2, through the end of the printing period. If more plates were engraved they are not identified in this manner.

The Jayne stamps concern us next. All three dies for RS147—1 Cent blue, RS148—2 cent black and RS149—4 cent green, were approved in December 1862. The original plates were made by Butler and Carpenter in that same month. Holcombe states that, "The National Bank Note Company of New York made new plates for all three values, probably in 1877." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 282) He further states that there seems to be no trace of the die numbers or of any numbers recorded for the several plates made.

Doctor Jayne's products were quite successful if judged by the volume of stamps sold. For the one cent stamp, RS147, 305,996 sheets were printed over the twenty years of the Revenue Act of 1862. This would have required perhaps six plates. The alignment of the diamond shaped stamps in vertical columns was accomplished by Butler & Carpenter using a variety of Type Ib P.D. (Figure 16). This P.D. often lies on the frameline of the vignette or up to several millimeters above or below the line. This dot can be found on the majority of stamps from all papers, leading us to think that Butler & Carpenter and Joseph Carpenter were responsible for the majority of the plates engraved. Some silk and watermarked copies have unclear P.D. (Figure 17) representing either stamps from the first column of plate number 1 or stamps from another plate. Surprisingly, despite the multiple plates undoubtedly needed, no double transfers have been recorded.

The two cent black stamp, RS148, was engraved in 1863 by Butler & Carpenter. A total of 112,000 sheets would be printed (40,000 old, 35,000 silk and 37,000 pink and watermarked). Two and probably three plates were used. Stamps from plate number 1 bear a Type Ib P.D. (Figure 18.) The majority of subsequent stamps also bear the same P.D. Double transfers have been described for all papers, and their variety helps to separate plates. First, a double transfer is described with doubling in the vignette and in the words "two" and "proprietary." This variety occurs on silk and pink papers, suggesting a second plate (Figure 19). Secondly, a variety exists on watermarked paper with doubling in the word "Philadelphia." This may represent a third plate.

The last Jayne stamp, RS148, a four cent tax stamp paid the tax on a $1.00 item. The die and first plate were engraved in 1863 by Butler and Carpenter and over the years 181,000 sheets were printed. Several plates were undoubtedly used.

We have Holcombe's assertion that the National made a second plate.

In studying this stamp we immediately noted that like its predecessors the stamps on old papers bear a Type Ib P.D. (Figure 20). Stamps with double transfers are known on silk and watermarked papers, representing a second plate, perhaps by the National. Again stamps exist with unclear Type P.D.

seph Carpenter to engrave a die and plate, all of which was completed in 1874. The plate(s) for RS156 would be used to print 40,000 sheets (10,000 old, 10,000 silk and 20,000 pink and watermarked). Holcombe states that, "The National Bank Note Company made a new plate but the number is not now know. After being printed on silk, pink and watermarked papers, the stamps were last issued by the Bureau on March 31, 1883." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 302) Stamps from plate number 1 are easily identified by their Type Ib P.D. (Figure 21) appearing on all stamps on old, silk, pink and the majority on watermarked paper. This suggests that the plate was used through the contract period for the National. Next we find that there are a significant (more than 10%) number of watermarked stamps with unclear S.P.D. which suggests a second plate. The National may have been the author of this plate in the last year of their contract, 1878, but this would seem unlikely in view of their use of the first plate to print so many watermarked stamps. It seems unlikely then that the National authored the second plate. We would credit this plate to the American or Bureau. To date no double transfers have been recorded from either plate.

watermarked). Only one plate might have been needed; however, Holcombe states, quite correctly in one sense that, "Probably in 1877 National made a new plate from which pink paper stamps were printed." (Holcombe, 1979, p.346) Strong evidence exists for the second plate. We can easily identify the stamps from the first plate with their Type Ia2 P.D. found on all silk, pink and some watermarked stamps (Figure 22). The remainder of watermarked copies have a Type II S.P.D. (Figure 23), thus constituting a minor variety. Since watermarked paper was first used in 1878, the second plate must have been engraved after that date. The National could have done the work, but it is certainly possible that either the American or the Bureau were responsible. No double transfers have been recorded.

The stamp created for the McLean Company proves to be a most complicated and interesting issue as there were 129,000 sheets printed over a 15 year span, with all five contract firms involved. The die was engraved by Butler and Carpenter and the first plate made in 1867. Printings followed totaling 130,000 sheets (30,000 old, 50,000 silk and 50,000 pink and watermarked). From this we might expect two or three plates. Holcombe states, "At least one plate was made by the National Bank Note Co. and what may have been a final plate by the Bureau, probably in 1881." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 349) Beginning with the first plate, the typical P.D. for Butler and Carpenter is found on all old, silk, pink and on some watermarked papers (Figure 24). The Majority of watermarked paper stamps have a Type II S.P.D. (Figure 25), constituting a minor variety. This would establish two plates. We can further subdivide the first group with Type Ia1 P.D. into two plates by the presence of a double transfer on silk and pink stamps (Figure 26) which does not appear to exist on old paper. This suggests that a second plate was made during the silk paper period, using the Type Ia1 method, which can only mean a Joseph Carpenter Company plate. Two distinctly different d.t. have been reported on watermarked paper. The first, is a triple transfer on a stamp bearing the National imprint would suggest a third plate by the National, (Riley and DeKay, 1982). The Type I2a P.D. would suggest that this is a Butler & Carpenter or Joseph Carpenter plate which the National reentered. And finally, yet another distinct double transfer occurs on watermarked stamps, and it bears a Type II S.P.D., supporting a fourth plate by the Bureau (Figure 27).

1879. From the large number of sheets printed we might expect there to be two or even three plates. Stamps from plate number 1 have an easily identifiable Type Ia1 P.D. (Figure 28). Holcombe states that, "The National Bank Note Co. of New York probably made a new plate and printings on silk, pink and possibly on watermarked paper." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 401) In our review we note that all stamps on all papers bear the same Type Ia1 P.D. characteristic for the Joseph Carpenter engravers which would give them the authorship of all plates. There is evidence for a second plate. First, there is the number of sheets printed, which suggests the need for a second plate during silk printings. Furthermore, there are double transfers which occur on silk and watermarked papers. The first double transfer would support a second plate by the Joseph Carpenter firm, probably late in their contract period. As we have seen with previous issues, as the plate wore down the detail in the vignette began to show the effect, and in this issue that can be appreciated in the thinning of the beard at its edges (Figure 29). We expect to find restored detail with a new plate. This is what we find among the watermarked copies. Fresh appearance and a new double transfer support a third plate (Figure 30). The Type Ia P.D. suggests that this maybe a re-entry of plate number 2.

Radway and Company is another of the many very interesting stamps in this series because of the variety of events which occurred during the life of the plates.

Butler and Carpenter engraved the first die of RS193 and made the first plate in 1866. Subsequently a total of 110,000 sheets were printed (30,000 old, 30,000 silk and 50,000 pink and watermarked). A second and perhaps third plate were required. Holcombe states, "Either Joseph R. Carpenter & Co. or the successor the National Bank Note Co. of New York made a new plate." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 419)

From our review, we found that stamps from Plate number 1 on old paper had either a Type Ia1 P.D. or an unclear P.D. (Figure 31). We attributed the absent P.D. to the width of the frameline. The width is large enough to obscure the dot in some cases or the dot shows only as a bulge on the line. This was in keeping with the Butler and Carpenter engraving technique which used a P.D. to locate nearly every stamp position. Examples of this can be found on old and silk papers. Several double transfers have been recorded on silk and pink paper. The example shown on silk paper is one of a pair, the other stamp bearing a Type Ia1 P.D. (Figure 32). This would constitute a second plate by either Butler & Carpenter or Joseph Carpenter. Some watermarked copies have the Type Ia1 P.D., indicating continued use of the second plate by the National into 1878. (The double transfer should exist on watermarked paper as well!) Half of the watermarked copies examined have a die alteration, consisting in a distinct cut-off of the ends of the vertical bars on the ends of the stamp! (Figure 33) The S.P.D. on all of these stamps is unclear. This would be a third plate. The author of this plate could be any of the Bank Note Companies, or even the Bureau. Final confirmation of authorship will have to await a copy with an imprint.

soon created. A total of 163,000 sheets were printed (56,000 old, 78,000 silk, and 29,000 pink and watermarked). Undoubtedly several plates were required for the printings on old paper alone. Holcombe states, "The National Bank Note Co. later engraved a new die which bore their number 4947. Final printing came from the American Bank Note Company in April 18." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 458) We presume that Holcombe meant that the National made a new plate and not a new die. There is no mention of a second die in Turner's book, (Turner 1974) Stamps on old paper from the first plate have an atypical Type Ia2 P.D. which occurs in pairs on the opposite short framelines (Figure 34). Double transfers are plentiful on silk paper, and many have Type Ia2 P.D. (Figure 35). We have accepted this as proof of a single second plate by the Butler and Carpenter or Joseph Carpenter firms, but in fact, the large number of double transfers could imply that several more plates may have been engraved by these firms at this time. This is especially likely in view of the fact that green ink was abrasive and plates of stamps printed in green had a shorter life in use than plates printed in other colors (Wilkens, 1975). In our search we have not identified a die alteration which Holcombe suggest. Surely a newly engraved die would be distinctive from the first. Lastly, we were able to identify a group of watermarked stamps bearing no P.D., some copies of which have a double transfer, which would indicate another plate, probably by the American Bank Note Company.

Next to be considered is the West India Manufacturing Company stamp, RS264. Since 1936 two dies have been recognized for this stamp printed on watermarked paper. The distinguishing feature between the dies is an increase in the shading of the central vignette. (Figure 36) The West India Manufacturing Company acquired the die from the Moody Michel Company whom they succeeded. They elected to use the existing die which required an alteration to reflect a change in the firm name. To that end, the National Bank Note Company altered the die, and engraved the first plate in 1877. Stamps were printed on silk, pink and watermarked papers, totaling less than 4,000 sheets. This small number of sheets would hardly necessitate a second plate. Holcombe states, "it is not known which of the bank note companies or the Bureau made the new plate and printed the Die II stamps," (Holcombe, 1979, p. 557). All stamps examined on all three papers have Type II S.P.D. Half of the stamps on watermarked paper have either a vignette from die #1 or die #2. (Figure 36) With this knowledge, if it is correct, one could determine the authorship of the second plate if in addition one knew the date at which half of the watermark paper stamps were delivered to the company. This information can be worked out if one had the time to examine the log books from the Internal Revenue Service which reference the date on which tax monies were received for the sheets printed. These books have recently been located at the National Philatelic Collection, in the National Museum of American History, of the Smithsonian Institution. For the moment then, the American or Bureau could have been authors of the second plate. No double transfers have been recorded.

Platemaker National American/Bureau? Wright's Medicine Company made and sold Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills. The die for his tax stamp, RS274, was engraved by Butler and Carpenter in 1864 and the first plate made. Subsequently 110,000 sheets were printed (60,000 old, 40,000 silk and 10,000 pink and watermarked). This large printing prompts consideration of the need for several plates. Regarding such plates Holcombe states, "From a plate made by the National Bank Note Co. the final issue was the work of the American Bank Note Co. of New York, some time previous to October 1, 1880," (Holcombe, 1979 p. 576). While we can see a need for a second Butler and Carpenter or Joseph Carpenter plate, none is identifiable, as virtually all stamps on all papers have a Type Ia1 P.D., without recorded double transfers or die alterations (Figure 37). Can we find support for a second plate? The answer is yes. The proof rests on two pieces of information, i.e.: a single example found to date with unclear S.P.D. (Figure 38), and secondly, the existence of a double transfer on watermarked paper, listed but unpriced by Scott. The existence of a stamp without a P.D. is not a secure point on which to base the existence of a second plate, in view of the fact that Butler and Carpenter plates could contain nine subjects in the first column which did not contain their characteristic Type I P.D. (Clague and Riley, 1986). Hopefully more copies will be located.

At this point we are left with three issues each printed in enormous numbers. They are RS4, RS35 and RS132. Interestingly, Holcombe had very little definitive comment about the dies and plates of these three issues.

We will review the stamps of the Brandreth firm first. Brandreth had three dies for stamps used on his pills and plasters which indicated payment of the appropriate amount of tax. Holcombe made no statements about multiple plates for any of these stamps, (Holcombe, 1979, pp. 55-6). We consider here the stamp Scott lists as Brandreth, Allcocks,

RS35. The die for this stamp was approved March 4, 1875. A total of 260,000 sheets would be printed (60,000 silk and 200,000 pink and watermarked). Several plates would have been needed for the watermarked and possibly also the silk printings. Stamps from the first plate on old paper have a Type Ia1 P.D. (Figure 39). This same P.D. appears on all silk, pink and approximately half of the watermarked stamps. We could only conclude that a second plate, if it were engraved, would have been the work of the Joseph Carpenter Company. No double transfers have been recorded for any paper. Half of the watermarked copies have an unusual P.D. which is probably a Type II (Figure 40). This S.P.D. is unusual in the location of the dot outside of the frameline. A similar example was described for the second plate of RS114, which was felt to be the work of the Bureau (see earlier in this paper under Analysis). The fact that it is a single dot and does not appear to straddle the frameline sufficiently distinguishes it from the Type Ib used by the Joseph Carpenter engravers.

Next we look at RS4, the one cent black strip stamp of the Ayer Company. The die for this stamp was engraved by Butler and Carpenter soon after the passage of the Revenue Act of July 1862. The plate had two rows of 23 stamps each. These rows were often divided in the middle by a vertical line. The success of Ayer's products which had first gained their fame in England would ultimately require the printing of 550,000 sheets (250,000 old, 150,000 silk and 150,000 pink and watermarked). With such a large number of sheets, we would anticipate the need for 10 or more plates. Holcombe states that, "Undoubtedly there were several plates form which the strip stamps were printed. Among the last was one made by the National Bank Note Co. which bore their plate No. 6- which was afterwards used by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing when they took over the contract in October 1, 1880. The

Bureau later made a plate but the number is not known." (Holcombe, 1979, p. 15) Five to seven plates would have been needed by the Butler and Carpenter and Joseph Carpenter firms.

One can locate a Type Ia2 P.D. on the left hand edge of the strip stamp if the stamp has not been shortened (Figure 41). Many of the stamps on silk paper, all of those on pink paper, and many of those on watermarked paper have a Type II S.P.D., indicating work of the bank note companies or the Bureau (Figure 42). There are watermarked copies which have an unclear S.P.D., which may represent either another plate with a distinctive hidden S.P.D., or they may represent stamps from the last column of the previous described plate bearing stamps with Type II S.P.D.

Thus far we have described two and possibly three plates separated on the basis of their P.D. Is there further basis for separation? Yes; while no die alterations are known, a double transfer has been recorded on silk paper which has a Type II S.P.D. We would certainly expect others given the high frequency of double transfers seen on other long stamps (RS118, RS132).

This discussion of plates might ordinarily end at this point were it not for the fact that collectors have long recognized variation to exist in the engraving of the "y" in Ayer's signature. This variety is not noted in Scott's Catalogue. Two varieties first drew the attention of Clarence Eagle, (Eagle, 1908) and later Holcombe. They consist in a full and complete stroke of the "y" and a distinct shortened or cutoff form, which often appears as a "q," see (Figure 43). Two issues arise in discussion of these varieties, i.e.: the several differences in the form of the "y" and the relationship of these differences to the original die. We shall address both issues.

In his writing, Eagle notes that the full "y" is found only on silk and watermarked papers, while the short "y" is found on all four papers. He concludes that the short "y" is the first die (Die 1) and the full "y" is Die 2. He does add that the discovery of the use of Die 2 on old paper would cause him to reconsider which die came first. In 1910 Eagle further recognized a subvariety of Die 1, "in that the hair line of the 'y' touches the shaded line at the bottom in some copies, and in others there is a distinct space between the two lines, i.e., they do not meet," (Eagle, 1908).

So in the early 1900s it was recognized that there were varieties in the "y" and that the full "y" existed only on silk and watermarked papers. To our knowledge, no one has further addressed this issue although Holcombe did repeat it in his writings. A recent search of Holcombe's papers in the Smithsonian turned up some very interesting unpublished thoughts. From these notes we learned that he felt, as did Eagle, that the Die 1 consisted in a shortened "y," despite the fact that he recognized first, a copy of RS3 contained the full "y," and second, that copies in brown, blue and orange had been described as either Die 1 or were very close to Die 2. Further, he recognized the subvariety "y" mentioned by Eagle for Die 1 and attributed the variety to an artifact in wiping the ink from the plate prior to printing.

Acceptance of this order of dies does not answer all of the facts. For instance, in the Eagle collection at the Smithsonian are three trial color die proofs in blue, green and black, with the full "y." Where are the die proofs of the short "y," so-called Die 1? Has anyone seen them? Not to our knowledge. The fact that some stamps were printed from an early plate with full "y" in the trial colors, mentioned by Holcombe, argues further that the full "y" die was the first to be engraved.

The following scenario seems probable to us: the first die contained the full "y" from which the die proofs and first plate were made and from which were printed 116 sheets each of seven different colored stamps. The fact that no stamps with full "y" on old paper in black have been reported is not so surprising in view of the fact that very few copies from these first sheets exist. In fact of the 5336 stamps of each color printed (except blue with 18,584 printed), only one or two copies of each are known.

A decision was made by the Ayer Company to use only black ink for all subsequent printings. The reasons for this decision are not known. In addition, with the order for more printings, we would have to conclude, considering the foregoing, that an order to alter the "y" was made. The fact that separate die proofs apparently do not exist for this shortened "y," suggests that the transfer roll was altered by trimming or filing of the "y" to a shortened form. A shortened "y" would improve the ease of plate layout and facilitate subsequent separation of the stamps. This would be relatively easy for the engraver to accomplish on the roll prior to hardening. Alternatively, the platemaker could have rocked in only a part of the "y"—a short transfer. This is unlikely as the shortened "y" would be variable from one transfer to the next, while in fact the shortened "y" found on large multiples are identical in all transfers for that multiple. In this scenario the subvariety "y" mentioned by Eagle and Holcombe, and pictured above would occur because of uneven filing of the transfer roll.

Thus we would propose only one die was prepared with a full "y" from which transfer rolls were made and subsequently altered. The transfer roll with full "y" would be subsequently used to prepare the plates from which the experimental trial colors, the silk and later watermarked paper varieties were printed (Figure 44).

We conclude this section with a review of the four cent strip stamp of the Hostetter Bitters Company, RS132. The die was engraved by Butler and Carpenter, with an approval date for the die recorded on October 1, 1862. The first plate was engraved soon thereafter and contained 46 stamps aligned in two rows of 23 stamps each. A total of 430,000 sheets were printed (100,000 old, 130,000 silk, 200,000 pink and watermarked). This indicated a need for at least eight plates. It is surprising that Holcombe would make no mention of these several plates, but does allude to them when he states, "There seems to be no trace of die or plate numbers," (Holcombe, 1979, p. 254). Copies from the first plate on old paper have an easily recognized Type Ia1 P.D. (Figure 45). All of the copies on old paper and many of those on silk paper have a similar dot. A second large group of stamps printed on silk, pink and watermarked papers have an unclear S.P.D., attesting to their origin from plates by the bank note companies or by the Bureau. A great many double transfers have been reported on silk paper, these having both Type Ia1 P.D. (Figure 46) or an unclear S.P.D., consistent with the second plate(s) by Joseph Carpenter and the bank note companies mentioned above (Riley and Arnold, 1981). No die alterations are known to date.

Platemaker B&C B&C/J.C.? National/ American Bureau?

The preceding data and the discussion confirms all but five instances of the 37 in which Holcombe claimed new plates had been prepared by engraving companies who succeeded to the engraving contract after the original dies had been produced. As shown in Table 1, in 22 instances we have been able to provide evidence for the existence of multiple plates of the private die medicine adhesive stamps based on differences in siderographic methods used in entering the reliefs on the plates. Confirmatory evidence based on the amount of plate usage and the existence of double transfers on stamps of a particular paper type was also cited.

Four of the 15 are stamps on which double transfers have been noted at some point in the history of the issue, suggesting new plates may indeed have been prepared are RS29, RS196, RS198 and RS253. Of these, only RS253 had a press run large enough to have necessitated a new plate due to plate wear.

In the remaining nine cases the evidence is ambiguous or Holcombe's claim of new plates may be flawed by a misinterpretation.

In the first instance for example, Holcombe postulated for the Blow stamp, RS31, that "it seems probable that another plate was made for the late printing," (Holcombe, 1979, p. 42). On all copies examined (Figure 47) either a Type Ia1 P.D. was found, or none at all, perhaps for any of the reasons cited earlier under Henry, RS114. Lack of double transfers on any of the paper types and a history of relatively low press runs supplies no compelling evidence for the need of a second plate, though, of course, a new plate is not precluded.

In the second instance evidence for a new plate by the National Bank Note Company was adduced from imprints in the selvage. Thus on March 11, 1940, Holcombe wrote A.W. Hall at the Bureau regarding the Prof. Low stamp, RS 166. Hall replied in part, "There is also one plate impression of this stamp on file.... The imprint 'Printed by the National Bank Note Co., New York' appears twice on all four margins." (Holcombe, unpublished) When Holcombe reported on Prof. Low's operation he stated in part, "...the National Bank Note Co. of New York... continued to print the Low stamps as they were ordered. Soon a new plate was made on which the imprint 'Printed by the National Bank Note Co., New York,' appeared twice on all four margins." and further on, "Probably some of the stamps on silk paper, all of those on pink paper and the early issues on watermarked apparently were printed from this plate by the National," (Holcombe, 1979, p. 343).

We think Holcombe mistook the imprint reading "Printed by the National Bank Note Co., New York" to mean they had prepared a new plate. Christopher West (1980, pp. 37-8) is quite clear in stating that plates acquired from Mr. Carpenter by the National had the Philadelphia imprint erased and replaced with one reading "Printed by The/National Bank Note Co., New York." We suspect that this mistake may have been made in many other instances throughout the series. Holcombe's notes at the Smithsonian, unpublished, refer to his inability to separate the plates of this series without reliance on selvage imprint information, which was his sole criterion.

Finally, in concluding this review, we would like to point out those stamps for which several plates probably exist, based on the combination of the numbers of sheets printed and the existence of double transfers. We were not able to discover changes in the P.D. to support a claim for new plates for the following:

NET PRICE/MAIL BID SALE CLOSES JUNE 22nd, 1988 "BUY IT OR BID IT"

Dear Collector:

This Net Price/Mail Bid Revenue Sale is the largest sale of its kind over formulated. In this sale you have the opportunity to buy at the prices listed or you can bid your price on the desired lot. All items will be offered net, and all items not sold by June 22nd will be sold to the highest mail bidder at a slight advance over the second highest mail bidder.

You may submit bids at the same time you submit a list of items you want to buy via net price. Please list the items you want to buy net price by lot number on a separate piece of paper, and please use a bid sheet for the items you want to bid on via mail bid. There will be no 10% buyers commission for this sale.

We have included many cheaper stamps in the sale that you would normally not see in a mail auction or Net Price Sale. Remember the closing date for receiving mail bids is June 22nd. Please mail in bids at least 4-5 days before the closing date to insure your bids get Good hunting and if you have any questions, please write or call. Above all have fun with this list. Take Care.

Sincerely,

Michael E. Aldrich

CONDITION

Extremely Fine (XF)—Best Possible centering.

Very Fine (VF)-Well centered with at least three equal margins, usually lightly cancelled.

Fine (F)-Perforations will be clear of design.

Very Good (VG)-Perforation may touch or cut design on one or more sides.

Lots being described as having "mixed condition" may have items contained there-in with a variety of faults. The term "unused" is used to describe an uncancelled stamp that is without gum.
